

Montana Tech's Undergraduate Advising Models

The goals of academic advising are to enhance the undergraduate experience by making students aware of the diverse options for courses and other educational experiences available to them at Montana Tech and to facilitate graduation in a timely manner. The key tenet for an effective system of advising is shared responsibility. A student is ultimately responsible for the choices he or she makes in college, but the college also has a responsibility to provide the student with the information and support needed to make those choices wisely. (Adapted from the American Association of Colleges and Universities, 2007)